Dear Women in Engineering,

We are very pleased that we were able to win an impressive personality full of energy as a speaker for our networking event this spring. Sandy Oppliger will speak about her career in a male dominated field in IT and Technology. In particular, she will share her lessons learned and talk about why it is important to stand up for oneself and to pursue goals. We are looking forward to having Sandy as keynote speaker with us!

As always, there will be a delicious aperitif and ample opportunity for curious questions and lively discussions.

We are looking forward to meeting you!
